Putting health in mind

Donation in Memory

In lieu of flowers, the family has requested that donations be made to the Black Dog Institute to help further research and treatment for depression and bipolar disorder.

The Black Dog Institute receives some government funding but also relies on the generous support of the community. Your donation will help the Institute to continue research and develop programs to provide better detection, treatment and management of mental illness.

Information on how to make a donation is on this card.

Thank you for your generosity.
